Men's Softball League Review

By RALPH TURNER

Men's Softball League: Last week's action in the Men's Softball League was frustrating and exciting. Two games were postponed by the National Guard and one forfeited by the Nic Nac. The National Guard had to postpone two games until they could get back from summer camp.

Writes Article In History Journal

Dr. Robert David Ward, associate professor of history at Georgia Southern College, is the author of an article published in the June issue of the Mississippi Valley Historical Review. The article is entitled "The Origin and Activities of the National Security League from 1914-1919." It discusses the League's organization and attempts to stir up military preparedness during the war which it through its investigation by the House of Representatives in 1919 and the ultimate decision that the League had violated the Espionage Act.

Southern Democrats ask, 'What shall I do?'

Democrats in Statesboro, Bulloch County, Georgia and the South are wrestling with their consciences, seeking the right way to go between now and including election day on November 8.

With John Kennedy nominated for president and Lyndon Johnson nominated for vice president and both pledging support for an unacceptable to us, so-called Civil Rights plank in the democratic platform, there is bound to be a great deal of personal soul-searching for the answer to the question, "What shall I do?"

How can we accept a platform plank which infers that we in the South exclusively are guilty of the violation of the assurance of "equal access for all Americans to all areas of community life, including voting booths, school-rooms, jobs, housing and public facilities."

We concur with the minority report which was presented to the Convention by James H. Gray, chairman of the Georgia delegation, before the adoption of the platform on Tuesday night, July 12 in Los Angeles, in which it was set forth that the states in the South "... have been subjected to every conceivable harassment in the field of civil rights at the instigation of well-organized pressure groups residing for the most part in States that have not favored the candidates for the

The higher the fewer

Does anyone doubt that the higher the price of anything, the fewer the people who can afford it, and therefore the smaller number that will be sold?

Does anyone doubt that the less sold, the fewer the jobs needed to make it?

Therefore, when union leaders and workers refuse a guarantee to increase efficient production to the best of their ability and enough to pay for any increased wage demanded, they are deliberately reducing the number of American jobs—and they know it.

Wage negotiation can be very simple, effective, fair—if they are honest.

Are we forgetting our home folks?

We have before us two news stories, one from the Christian Science Monitor and the other from Baton Rouge (La.) States Times. Both go to some length to deride handling of tourists along U.S. 301 and U.S. 17 through Georgia. They deplore the treatment tourists get at the hands of county sheriffs and deputies when caught in a "speed trap."

We know where the traps are and the Georgia Department of Commerce and the Georgia Department of Public Safety know where they are. And the traveling public has been warned.

We also know that the entire state of Georgia has to accept responsibility and must suffer the consequences attached to these isolated "speed traps."

Now we have been as loud in our protest as the next one about the operation of these speed traps.

Realizing the economic impact that the business of tourism has upon our community and every other community along these heavily traveled highways we have pleaded for cordial relations with the tourists.

But we just wonder if, in our preoccupation with the business

Democratic Party for President and Vice President of the United States."

This sort of civil rights plank will lead us down the road to a super-state which is contrary to our interpretation of what a Democracy is and should be.

We abhor that kind of democracy which creates and sustains and says that big government alone has the all wisdom and compassion to deal with all our problems, ignoring private institutions and private enterprise, personal initiative and private will.

The final paragraph of the minority report says:

"In all our considerations, let us remember this one thing about our presence in history: That the essential conditions of America's swift development and unusual progress has been freedom—freedom to make social choices, freedom to promote our economy, freedom to elect our rulers. Freedom made America great, and that freedom gets its initial thrust and energy from the flexible and unregulated interplay of personal vitalities. Efforts to suppress this proper function inevitably produce the moral tensions, disorders and confusions in mounting crescendo today."

Yes, Democrats all over our South are wondering, "What shall I do?" come November 8.

There'll be a lot of fishing done on that day, no doubt.

of pleasant relations with the tourists, we have not forgotten the business of pleasant relations with our hometown folk who are forced to use our streets which are also segments of these tourist routes?

We suggest that our city fathers make a serious study of the traffic situation in our city and determine how it affects our home folk.

Statesboro is a city in which a lot of people make their home—not just a stopping place for tourist where they should be made comfortable and happy that they'll spend money here. That's desirable, of course. But there exists a responsibility to make the people of Statesboro and Bulloch County happy too.

Let's work at it.

The Walkers are safe

According to an announcement made Monday by the Board of World Missions Methodist missionaries from Georgia have all been safely evacuated from the Republic of Congo. The Atlanta Methodist Information Office lists Mr. and Mrs. David E. Walker and their three children of Statesboro as among the Georgians who had been evacuated. It does not say what date they were evacuated but did say that "wives and children were evacuated first, followed several days later by their husbands."

The Board added that the escaping missionaries reported that none of them were harmed or molested in any way. Neither was there any hostility or property damage to any Methodist property.

In our "Uneasy Chair" on this page we have a letter which Mrs. Walker wrote to her mother, Mrs. Mamie Lou Bondurant of Statesboro, on June 30, Independence Day in the Congo.

In the light of the fast developments in the new Republic of Congo, Mr. and Mrs. Walker's friends and Mrs. Bondurant's friends are happy to have later word that the Walkers are safe.

FIND THE PRESIDENT

By LAWRENCE E. HOUSTON JR.

THE SERVICE of Holy Communion was in progress. As the minister, I was serving the elements of the bread and the wine when I spied, my youngest daughter kneeling beside her mother. Needless to say, she was taking it all in with that bright-eyed curiosity of a four-year-old.

As I approached her, she caught my eye and vigorously shook her head. I ignored her. Then, as I passed the trays in front of her, she whispered to me: "Daddy, I don't like that." A word to the wise being sufficient, I passed her by. After I had dismissed the group with prayer, I realized my daughter was unhappy. Her hand was pressed firmly across her eyes as she followed her mother back to the pew.

I DISMISSED the incident from my mind, but as I opened the front door to the parsonage, there Becky stood, and I knew she had not immediately, in a flash of tears, she poured out her heart with her father.

"Daddy," she cried, "I don't like that wafer, but I wanted something to drink." Then I knew—The communion wafer was tasteless to her, but the grape juice would have been quite refreshing so close to the noon hour.

THE SACRILEGIOUS aspect of this incident fades away before a mounting spiritual application. The service of Holy Communion is not to be taken lightly. It is not to be understood as a "sweet and sentimental remembrance of Jesus." It is meaningful to us only as we acknowledge His grip upon our lives. This means we become involved in the heart of the faith, and not simply superficially.

Not a few of us shrink from the austere demands of the Christian faith. It is a rather shocking experience to learn that the Cross is not just a nice symbol, but a stark reality—not only for Jesus but for us who follow Him. We cannot receive the Holy Communion without recognizing the heart of our faith to be a cross.

TO IDENTIFY ourselves with Christ means the possibility of a life of loneliness, rejection, misunderstanding, and ridicule. It means the possibility of suffering for what one believes. It means, among other things, living a life of struggle and of intense toil.

This we must remember—The literature of hope has come out of the environment of suffering, while the literature of pessimism has been born in times of comfort and prosperity.

IT IS NOT a wayward thought that someone should draw back from the elements of the Holy Communion. Those elements mean identity with the crucified Christ. Such identity could be unpleasant but redemptive!

Many believed the word honest had little meaning to the alcoholic; that it might even shake him up and scare him away.

To come to an AA meeting, the drinker does not need to call himself an alcoholic. He need not need a desire to stop drinking, or a desire to have a new life, to save his job, his wife, or to have happiness. All he needs is the courage to walk through the AA Club room door.

This little bit of courage may be lacking even when he knows that on the other side of the door are many of his old drink-lounging cronies, now sober, will welcome him more sincerely than they ever did over a glass of beer.

Why is it lacking? It could be evasion of truth. In no other area of medicine, sociology or religion does the truth appear to be so elusive as in alcoholism. Dishonesty and evasion of truth are the same. Another term is lying.

If you are interested, this can be proved about alcoholics by a simple laboratory experiment. Call any alcoholic to his face a Total Lar. Then see what happens. You had better be prepared to dodge!

Wooden arches with clear spans of up to 250 feet have been fabricated by gluing southern pine boards together, says Harold Baxter, forestry marketing specialist, Agricultural Extension Service.

the editor's uneasy chair

The following is a letter from Mrs. David Walker, the former Mrs. Dorothy Kennedy, daughter of Mrs. Mamie Lou Bondurant. She and her husband are Methodist missionaries in the Republic of Congo. It was written June 30, which was Independence Day in the Congo. Rioting, killings, and turmoil followed and there was great concern for Mr. and Mrs. Walker. A short wave radio report was sent to Mrs. Bondurant last week which reported that the Mr. and Mrs. Walker and children were safe.

We believe the letter Mrs. Walker wrote to her mother has local interest and we have permission to use it here.

Independence Day
Wembo Nyama, Via Lusambo
Province du Kasai
Republic du Congo
June 30, 1960
Dear Mother and Ben
The day dawned cool and foggy like most other dry spring days in Congo.

It was like the day before was and like the day after would be. The same restless crowd, the same goats bleated, the same babies cried. The people awakened and came out. They looked at the palms which towered over the mud and thatch houses.

In this peace of a new day it seemed strange that nothing was different, for this was Independence Day.

FOR EIGHTY YEARS they had lived in a colony of Belgium. Today their country joined with the man of Africa who have declared their independence. Today they were a part of the new Congo Republic.

What did we expect? During the past year and a half, as the Congo moved toward independence, many have thought all would be well on this day—that wealth and happiness would be showered down. Others feared disorder, revenge and bloodshed.

The two neighboring Belgian families moved to the larger state post at Katakomb. The missionaries stayed at their posts. Stephen, our six-year-old, had wanted to know if he could see independence. We explained why he could not, yet I believe we did see it in the joy on people's faces and in the spirit in which our people accepted their independence.

ANY CELEBRATION calls for a feast here. This one was special. The missionaries, we've invited for the first time. At noon the drums called the people together. Each family came with its own dishes and "food" (rice and cassava greens). First hot tea and lots of milk and sugar were served. Dottie Gilbert and Dot worked with two African women on that. Papa Ndjula was in charge of the leaders. Drums called the people to church to thank God for their independence and to pray for their country and its leaders and to pray for peace all over the world. Each person was asked to give one franc (two cents) offering for the work of the Congo Protestant Council. Pierre Shaumba, one of the Methodist ministers, has recently been selected the first African Secretary-General of the organization whose work is so vital in this country. The people were most generous in their offering and the service was almost unanimously attended at Wembo Nyama.

THE CITIZEN may exercise an influence upon political affairs by not voting as well as by voting. In some instances, abstentions from voting may become more meaningful than votes themselves. For one thing, an obvious absence of votes rules out the prospect that any politician or party can legitimately lay claim to "a mandate from the people."

For another, it signifies the existence of a substantial body of public opinion which is not only uncommitted, but manifestly unconvinced. The very silence of non-voting citizens makes them a force to be reckoned with. What often is described as apathy may in fact be political loneliness—a state which can be ended abruptly by the presentation of an acceptable program.

THE "GET OUT THE VOTE" promoters make a great thing out of the high percentage of voting which characterizes a number of countries other than the United States. They point reproachfully to America's low incidence of voting in contrast with that in England, Belgium, Switzerland, they usually omit reference to extraordinarily high percentage of voting in dictatorships, where everyone votes, but no one has any choice.

That matter of "choice" is the secret of America's success in popular government. The American is free to choose from among candidates and among causes, and if he finds none worthy of his endorsement, he is free to withhold his vote until the matter of "choice" becomes politically available.

In short, he can vote not only as he pleases, but if he pleases.

ON THE SERIOUS side, there has been a great deal of honest work taking place under the guidance of Dr. Tully Pennington of Georgia Southern College, Miss Virginia Parker of the Marvin Pittman Faculty and Mrs. Gladys Atkinson from the Atlanta High Schools.

It is not the purpose of the Science Workshop to send out teachers who will turn all the school children into scientists as Einstein. The teachers, instead, hope to develop the young folks into persons who can understand the world about them and in turn will appreciate it, take care of it, improve it and enjoy it.

Every one should take time out to see what has been going on at the Science Workshop.

THESE TEACHERS chose different units to work on at the end of a two or three day work period the whole group has assembled through out summer to school share with each other some of the findings and learnings.

At the beginning it seemed that the teachers thought they had gathered for a "Sweet Shop" or the "Salt Mine." However, as time went by the groups came to be more relaxed and the so-called "sharing periods" were times of sharing fun as well as knowledge.

ANY ONE who has had his own youngsters in school would have enjoyed the first grade shows. There's something sort of wonderful about a first grade teacher anyhow, and to have seen each teacher pretending to be first grader in the school room has been a joy. NOTE: The following was written by William D. Workman and distributed by the Hall Syndicate to the daily press over the nation. We found it interesting. We believe you will too.

LOS ANGELES — With the Democratic national convention ending and the Republican national convention not yet begun, the air already is being filled with cries of "Get Out the Vote" in November.

The essence of these civic-minded admonitions is the belief that one should, as you please—but Vote! As an abstraction, this advice makes sense; but as an element of practical politics, it doesn't. Why, in the area of political warfare, should the partisan give aid and comfort to the enemy?

Getting out the vote should be no helter-skelter shoeing of voters to the polls. It should be a selective enterprise, aimed at and geared to the business of bolstering support for a particular cause of a particular candidate. So long as the rights of all American citizens to participate in their governmental affairs is safeguarded, the stress should be on quality rather than quantity of factual participants.

"Discrimination" is a dirty word these days, but without it there can be no intelligent choice of persons or policies. Presumably, the vote-getters-outers have some awareness of the relative merits of the office-seekers or issues which come before the public. If that be so, why should they prod voters to the polls without making some estimate as to how those individuals may vote?

The voter who decided intelligently how his vote should be cast would be an idiot then to rush out and muster up a vote to nullify his own.

THE CONSERVATIVES who sought so futilely to arouse grassroots support in 1956 for T. Coleman Andrews as a third-party candidate failed in their attempt, but they did leave a footnote to political history with this slogan: "A vote for the lesser of two evils is still a vote for evil."

THE CITIZEN may exercise an influence upon political affairs by not voting as well as by voting. In some instances, abstentions from voting may become more meaningful than votes themselves. For one thing, an obvious absence of votes rules out the prospect that any politician or party can legitimately lay claim to "a mandate from the people."

For another, it signifies the existence of a substantial body of public opinion which is not only uncommitted, but manifestly unconvinced. The very silence of non-voting citizens makes them a force to be reckoned with. What often is described as apathy may in fact be political loneliness—a state which can be ended abruptly by the presentation of an acceptable program.

THE "GET OUT THE VOTE" promoters make a great thing out of the high percentage of voting which characterizes a number of countries other than the United States. They point reproachfully to America's low incidence of voting in contrast with that in England, Belgium, Switzerland, they usually omit reference to extraordinarily high percentage of voting in dictatorships, where everyone votes, but no one has any choice.

That matter of "choice" is the secret of America's success in popular government. The American is free to choose from among candidates and among causes, and if he finds none worthy of his endorsement, he is free to withhold his vote until the matter of "choice" becomes politically available.

In short, he can vote not only as he pleases, but if he pleases.

ON THE SERIOUS side, there has been a great deal of honest work taking place under the guidance of Dr. Tully Pennington of Georgia Southern College, Miss Virginia Parker of the Marvin Pittman Faculty and Mrs. Gladys Atkinson from the Atlanta High Schools.

It is not the purpose of the Science Workshop to send out teachers who will turn all the school children into scientists as Einstein. The teachers, instead, hope to develop the young folks into persons who can understand the world about them and in turn will appreciate it, take care of it, improve it and enjoy it.

Every one should take time out to see what has been going on at the Science Workshop.

Preston speaks at dedication of Claxton PO

CLAXTON, GA. — A crowd of 700 persons, including guest speakers Sen. Herman E. Talmadge and Rep. Prince H. Preston, is expected for the dedication of Claxton's modernistic new post office building on Sunday, July 31.

The public is invited for the festivities which will include a 45 minute concert by the Parris Island Marine Band, starting at 2:30. The official dedication of the new building will follow the concert. Open house will follow the dedication with refreshments being served.

Regional Director of the Post Office Department and a host of other postal officials are expected to attend.

We Buy ALL Animals Brought to Our Market... Not Just A Few. Bring Your Livestock Anytime... PARKER'S Will Buy Them.

MR. FARMER... we were out of the livestock auction business for two years and we had hundreds of livestock growers and farmers asking us to return... telling us that they had no satisfactory market for that period of time and did not get what they thought their livestock was worth.

We did just that... we went back into the livestock business and up to the present day we have not found any farmer that has not been satisfied.

We... at Parker's... are asking you at this time to continue to do business with your livestock market... Parker's... that has over 90 per cent of the time lead other markets and will continue to do so.

We have for the past several years been offering you a daily market and NOT CHARGING COMMISSIONS.

As we have always told you and proved to you... Parker's Stockyard will always get you more for your livestock, even though there may be other ways that you can sell your livestock... Sell with Parker's in the future... as you have in the past... you will always get more.
